Subject: Executive Director Announcement

The Executive Committee along with the entire APWA Board of Directors is pleased to announce that Scott Grayson has accepted the offer of Executive Director for the American Public Works Association.

Currently, Scott is the Associate Managing Director for the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers, Inc. (IEEE) located in Washington, DC. He is responsible for programs related to employment, career and professional development, licensing, and accreditation and supports the IEEE-USA Board of Directors. Scott has worked in the areas of communications, public relations, chapter relations, membership development, conference management, fundraising, research, and most recently has been working with student and young professional member engagement. He has been with IEEE-USA since 1990 and has been responsible for grassroots, state and federal legislative programs including being a staff liaison to numerous scientific engineering and legal organizations to build coalitions.

Scott holds a bachelor of arts degree in political science from the University of Wisconsin and a master's in Latin American & Caribbean Studies, specializing in international relations and economic development from New York University. He is also active in the American Society of Association Executives (ASAE), Association for Talent Development (ATD) and the Council for Engineering and Scientific Society Executives (CESSE).

Scott will begin his new position with APWA effective April 14th. He plans to be able to meet the Kansas City and Washington office staffs prior to his first day. More information will follow.

Please join me in welcoming Scott to the APWA staff.
